JOSEPHINE'S TOMB

Movement to Find a Suitable Resting Place.

A movement is on foot to find a suitable last resting-place for the Empress Josephine, the famous Creole widow whose beauty, wit and grace won the heart of the world's greatest warrior, Napoleon Bonaparte.

Almost one hundred years after her death, Josephine Tascher de la Pagerie, widow of the guillotined Viscount de Beauharnais, mother of Queen Hortense of Holland, grandmother of Napoleon the Third, Emperor of the French, great grandmother of the young hero and martyr who was killed in Zululand, the Empress concentrated at the Cathedral of Notre Dame by a Pope, the passionately loved wife of the Master of Europe is practically tombless to-day. Her tomb is in the parish church of Reuil, a hamlet, half an hour's journey from the St. Nazaire station, and one mile distant from Malmaison, where Josephine lived from the time of her divorce until her death. It is on the way to St. Germain-en-Laye, where James the Second of England died in a similar state of decay. The parish church of Reuil is the frame of which Josephine's tomb is the picture.

THE RECENT UPRISING IN CANTON.

The recent outbreak, according to the native papers, is more wide-reaching than many at first thought. It appears that Wm. Wo-shan has been contemplating something of a counter revolution for some time. What his ultimate object could be does not clearly appear but for some weeks he has been plotting, and has taken other into the scheme. It is said that he sent emissaries as far west as the borders of Kwangsi, in order to stir up rebellion, and enlist those who were ready for a fight, in order that there might be risings in different places at the same time. According to one report the French authorities in Annam saw that something was brewing and suppressed anything like disturbance in their districts. Hence nothing came of the attempt to rouse the people to rebellion in the west. We have already hinted that Wong intended to bring about foreign intervention in the affairs of the south by firing upon foreign ships as they went to and fro between Hongkong and Canton. Somehow he failed in this, and so that danger was averted. The whole movement as far as the outside world goes seems to be vague and most end in smoke in any case; apparently there was an attempt to set up something like a separate government in the two southern provinces and probably Wong hoped that he himself would be appointed President of the miniature Republic.

SHANGHAI VOLUNTEERS.

In the annual report on the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, Colonel Barnes writes that the increase in numbers since 1910 was maintained in 1911 to the troubled state of China, although he expressed the doubt that the increase in the Corps corresponds with the increase in the population. The Shanghai Volunteer Corps, which was formed in 1854, and has since that time been the mainstay of the local police, has in the past been a very important factor in the maintenance of order in the city. The report also mentions that the Corps has been instrumental in the suppression of several serious disturbances in the past, and that it has been a valuable asset to the local authorities in many other ways.

THE COAL MINES BILL.

INTRODUCTION IN PARLIAMENT.

Important Speech by Premier.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, March 19.

In the House of Commons to-night, Mr. Asquith announced that Friday would be allocated to the Coal Bill and the promoters of the Conciliation of Women's Enfranchisement Bill would be given an early date instead of Friday. He hoped that the House of Lords would sit on Saturday as it was urgent that the Bill should be passed this week. He added that the Budget would be taken on April 2nd.

NECESSITY FOR LEGISLATION.

Mr. Asquith then introduced the Coal Mines Bill. He said it was with great and unaffected reluctance that he introduced it, but its introduction and its passing by Parliament promptly was absolutely imperative in the best interests of the country. The Government, he said, had resorted to legislation only when all hopes of settlement by agreement had disappeared and when the necessity of putting a speedy end to the stoppage of the coal industry had become a matter of paramount urgency. Long before these matters had reached a acute stage the Government thought it their duty to consider all alternative plans of legislation and the more they surveyed the ground the more clearly they realized the difficulties and hazards to which the best conceived plan of legislation must be exposed, and they persevered as long as possible hoping for a way of escape along a better and more expedient path.

THE GOVERNMENT'S DUTY.

What, asked the Premier, was the Government's duty? The stoppage of the coal industry for a fortnight was producing and had produced an ever-growing daily weight of inconvenience and suffering. In these circumstances the Government came, without hesitation, to the conclusion that Parliament must be asked to intervene, and, as the parties were unable to agree, that the State must provide a settlement. They were driven to legislation. Therefore they held that the only kind of legislation which they were justified in proposing was legislation directed to a particular purpose and not going beyond it.

THE PROPOSALS.

The conclusion to which the Government had come, and with which 65 per cent of the coalowners agreed, was that, having regard to the unique conditions of the mining industry, there ought to be a minimum and reasonable wage on the one hand, and, on the other, adequate safeguards to protect owners against slackness and deficiency of output. They must have machinery, intelligent, competent and impartial, to settle both the amount of the minimum and the extent of the safeguards. The Bill was a temporary measure which would continue in force for three years. The minimum wage would be retrospective and if and when the man returned to work they would be paid from the day of their return at a rate to be subsequently fixed by the District Boards.

The District Boards would draw up regulations and conditions for regularity and efficiency of work, and the workman who failed to comply therewith would not be entitled to a minimum wage. The Boards would settle the extent of the general minimum wage and general district rules, namely, the conditions for efficiency and regularity. The Bill contained no penal provisions upon one side or the other.

Continuing, Mr. Asquith said the employer would be liable to pay the underground workman a wage not less than the wage fixed by the District Boards, but the mineowner would not be compelled to open his coal mines, nor did the Bill compel a workman to descend into the pit.

It might be said, added the Premier, that this Bill would prove nugatory, but he hoped and believed it would not be so. After Parliament had taken action the position would be no longer what it was before. There would be no longer any doubt as to the principle of a minimum wage and no longer any difficulty, with good sense and fairness, in settling the various grades. That was all they could do.

PROPOSED LABOUR AMENDMENT.

Mr. Ramsey MacDonald advised caution in such legislation because it was going to be permanent not one but a series of Bills would be required. He emphasized the point that the Labour members would move an amendment that included in the Bill the approval of the principle of no compensation. He might ask for a few amendments on the question of enforcement, but he was not going to move any. But this was a Bill which would be permanent, and he would be glad to see it passed.

T E COAL CRISIS.

ATTITUDE OF LABOURITES AND OPPOSITION.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, March 19.

It is announced that the Labour Party will not oppose the Minimum Wage Bill at present, but will shape their attitude during the committee stage in consultation with the miners' executives. Speaking at Cambridge, Mr. Walter Long warned the Government that the Opposition would jealously safeguard the interests of the employers.

MORE THREATS.

Later.

A number of miners' leaders delivered speeches last night, several being of a threatening tone, declaring that if the Minimum Wage Bill be unsatisfactory they would not hesitate to bring the country lower to its knees. The most hopeful speech indicated that it would be at least a fortnight before the resumption of work was possible. A ballot of miners will probably be necessary.

THE CASUALTIES.

London, March 20.

Thirty-three were killed and 50 wounded in the San Antonio explosion. The use of dynamite is suspected.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKES.

The strike is stagnant in Westphalia, but many miners have struck in Saxony, Hanover and Saar, and a strike is threatened of the colliers in Silesia.

LIVERPOOL RACES.

It has been officially announced that the Liverpool Races will take place.

CHINESE AFFAIRS.

TO PLACATE THE SOUTHERNERS.

(Wah Tse Yat Po Service.)
PEKING, March 18.

In order to placate the Southern troops, Wong King has resolved to vacate the post of chief of the War Department, but he is willing to remain in Peking as adviser to the new government.

THE SHANGHAI KIDNAPING.

SHANGHAI, March 19.

The soldiers have released Sheng Kung-pao's grandson, whom they recently kidnapped, finding that they made a mistake in doing so.

TOUCHY FINANCIERS.

The representatives of the financial syndicates lending money to China have refused to hand over funds on the ground that Tang Shao-yi has been entering into financial negotiations with Belgian financiers without consulting them.

THE SHANGHAI TROUBLE.

SHANGHAI, March 20.

Two hundred soldiers from Tientsin, disaffected on account of the delay in receiving their pay, kicked up a row. They were overpowered by cavalry, and five of their number and one rickshaw coolie were killed.

DISSATISFACTION.

Being dissatisfied with the recent Cabinet appointments, the members of the Nanking provisional government are talking of resigning.

ATTACK ON THE TREASURY.

The Kiangai soldiers recently attacked the Army Pay Department at Nanking, but were repulsed by the Canton troops.

NAVAL AND MILITARY HEADS.

Yuen Shih-kai has appointed Lin Tzu-shan Vice Minister for War, and Ching Hsi-kwang Chief of the Navy.

PROMINENT SOCIALIST ARRESTED.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, March 20.

Tom Mann, the President of the Syndicalist Education League, has been arrested in connection with the prosecution of the newspaper Syndicalist on a charge of inciting the troops not to fire on strikers.

AMERICAN BOILER EXPLOSION.

25 MEN KILLED.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, March 19.

Reuter's New York correspondent wires that at least 25 men have been killed as the result of the explosion of a locomotive boiler in an engine house of the Southern Pacific Railway at San Antonio, while many more were injured. The majority of the victims were strike breakers.

THE NAVAL DEBATE.

LORD CHARLES BRESFORD'S CRITICISM.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, March 19.

During the debate in the House of Commons on the Naval Estimates, Lord Charles Bressford criticised the omission to defend the trade routes. It was a mistake to use provocative language towards Germany. We were always nagging at Germany instead of attending to Imperial defence.

THE CASUALTIES.

London, March 20.

Thirty-three were killed and 50 wounded in the San Antonio explosion. The use of dynamite is suspected.

TURKEY AND PERSIA.

RUSSIA SATISFIED WITH EXPLANATIONS.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, March 19.

The Russian military movements in the Caucasus, which excited some alarm in Europe, have been suspended. Turkey having given satisfactory assurances concerning the movements of her troops towards Persia.

WRECK OF THE OCEANA.

THE MAILS LOST.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, March 19.

The bodies washed up at Hastings are believed to be that of the Rev. Mr. Leishman and a passenger on the Oceana who accompanied the Naval Brigade to Peking during the Boxer Rebellion.

DEATH OF SINGAPORE EX-COUNCILLOR.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, March 19.

The death is announced of Mr. Aiken, barrister, and a former member of the Legislative Council at Singapore.

THE SUGAR CONVENTION.

BRITAIN'S ATTITUDE.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, March 19.

The Government has announced in Parliament that Britain has not signed the Protocol prolonging the Sugar Convention and is in no wise committed to the new Convention, but has notified that we do not object to an increase of Russian exports during the continuance of the Convention.

MARCHIONESS OF CREWE.
